

Local band to perform free outdoor concert in Village of Hamburg

Stahl and band promise 'folk rock with a side of sarcasm'

By DANIEL MEYER
Sun Editor

A special outdoor concert is scheduled to be held this Thursday, Aug. 9 in the Village of Hamburg featuring the local band "Tom Stahl and the Dangerfields."

The evening will feature a free show from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Memorial Park, located at the corner of Union and Lake streets in Hamburg.

The concert will be sponsored by G.F. Brooks Associates of Main Street in Hamburg.

The entire family is invited to attend as Stahl and company promise to "return local music to Thursday night" and provide an alternative to the concerts featuring mostly out-of-town acts that play each Thursday as part of the "Thursday At The Square" concerts in downtown Buffalo.

Outdoor concerts are already

The event will feature original music performed by Stahl, a Village of Hamburg resident, and his band, with the musical group promising to provide "folk rock served with a side of sarcasm."

The event came to fruition thanks to the hard work of Village of Hamburg Trustee Paul Gaughan.

held each Wednesday at Memorial Park, as part of the village's Summer Concert Series.

Coolers are welcome but alcoholic beverages are not permitted in any village parks.

For more information about Stahl and the band, visit their Web site at www.tomstahlandthedangerfields.com.